Toxic waste plan opposed

More than 100 Huron Township residents turned up for a meeting organized by the Huron Valley Citizens' Association to discuss the latest move by Environmental Management System in its bid to obtain a toxic waste permit from the Department of Natural Resources.

EMS is seeking the permit approval in order to dump the waste at a 300-acre site located at I-275 and Will Carleton Road. Last July EMS vice president Thomas Handyside informed the township board that it is seeking a license for toxic waste.

Township officials and HVCA have opposed the move by EMS and have raised funds to fight the proposal. "We had an excellent turnout at our recent meeting and we're seeking the support of every resident in this township," said Janet Kidd, vice president of HVCA. "We don't want toxic waste to be dumped in this township."

Mrs. Kidd said that those interested in joining the HVCA may contact her at 654-9524.

Be my valentine?

It's that romantic time of year again and these first graders are helping decorate the bulletin board in Mrs. Sharon Popek's classroom at Wick Elementary. Joey Scarrow and Angela White are leaning to cut out hearts while Starr Marie Lamb is ready to hand up her Valentine. The baskets will be filled with treats and sweets in time for the first official party of the year on February 14.

Officer injured

Wild chase ends in man's arrest

A 49-year-old man who says he's from Tennessee will have to explain to a judge why he tried to elude Romulus police and deliberately rammed a Wayne County Sheriff's patrol car early Saturday morning.

Dean Lowe, who says he's from Tennessee, was arrested by Romulus police officers Richard Schwartz and Daniel Snyder after a high-speed chase that initiated about 9 a.m. on Northline Road east of Hannan. The chase ended shortly after Lowe crashed his vehicle into the sheriff's patrol car, injuring officer Terry Lindsay.

Lindsay was knocked unconscious. He was taken to Wayne County General Hospital for treatment of head injuries and over-night observation.

The bizarre incident occurred when officers Schwartz and Snyder were dispatched to the Northline-Hanna area of a report that a man was asleep in a van parked in the traffic lane. As the two officers approached the scene, the driver took off in the van and the officers pursued with lights and siren on.

The 24-mile chase through Romulus and Wayne terminated on eastbound I-94 near Middlebelt after Lowe reportedly crashed through the sheriff's road block.

Lowe appeared before Judge James Stone, 34th District Court, and was charged with felonious driving. Bond was set at $7,500 and the defendant was released to reappear for pre-trial examination which is scheduled for Wed., Feb. 15.

Police said that Lowe's license had been previously suspended. They believe that he resides in the Ypsilanti area, although the defendant insists that he's from Caryville, Tennessee.

State Police probe:

No criminal activity in sale of city scrap iron

A month-long investigation by the Department of State Police into the sale of scrap metal by members of the Department of Public Works' employees culminated last week with the troopers finding "no criminal activity involved."

A letter signed by Stuart S. Hutchings, Inspector, Assistant Director District Commander Second District Headquarters, to Mayor Beverly McAnally, revealed that the investigation concluded there was no wrongdoing by the DPW employees.

The letter stated, "Our investigation of the scrap metal sale by Department of Public Works' employees has been completed. It was determined that no criminal activities were involved either in the actual sale or in the handling of the money received from the sale."

Inspector Hutchings' letter concluded by saying that "No other specific criminal acts were discovered as a result of the investigation."

DPW employees came under fire by Council who unanimously asked the administration to take steps for an impartial investigation into the sale of scrap iron. The scrap had been accumulated by employees who collected the materials from the city streets.

Monies from the sale of the scrap iron were believed used for the city employees' Christmas Party. However, city officials say that that is not true. The money was turned over to the treasurer.

Geraold Sweda, a DPW employee, appeared before council Monday night and informed council members that the money (from the sale of scrap iron) had never been used by the DPW for the Christmas Party.

"We have always paid our own way," Sweda continued, "and I believe that this (the stories published in the local newspapers) have hurt our department's image. I would wish that those who would criticize us would first check out the rumors before they condemn us."

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry replied that no one has or ever had the right to sell city items or property without the approval of council. "It is made clear in the charter (City Charter) and there are penalties and fines for violating it."

Councilman Barry Baumann said he was pleased that the investigation "is now behind us."

"In the first place, I felt that the only necessary action we needed to take was a change in policy," Baumann continued. "and that has been accomplished by the administration. Not once did I think or believe that any criminal wrongdoing was done by the workers."

"I feel bad that the DPW employees had to go through this."

Their reputation was needlessly tainted by the investigation," Baumann concluded.

Where will CD grants be spent?

If the City Council were to grant the wishes of all the petitioners who are seeking part of the 1984 Community Development Grant Program funds, it would need more than $1 million instead of the approximately $106,000 made available this year to Romulus by the federal government.

Taking steps to comply to the federal guidelines in awarding the funds and faced with a March 15 deadline to make application for them, City Council Monday night held an hour-long public hearing.

The purpose of the meeting was to receive input from the community and organizations on where best the grant money would serve.

Patrick A Hogan, Community Development director, refreshed council's memory that "the purpose of the public hearing is to hear public comment upon this on-going program and to consider uses of the initial entitlement associated with the program (approximately $106,000)."

"As in the past years, the money can be spent only on projects which either principally benefit lower income persons, prevent/eliminate slums or blight or meet an urgent community need. Funds can't be used to reimburse the city for expenses incurred in the normal operation," Hogan cautioned.

A long list of organizations and individuals presented their case for a share of the funds.

Among those who urged council to consider their organizations are: Romulus Chamber of Commerce, the Romulus Central Business District Association, the Romulus Help Center, Romulus Parents Area Council, Romulus North Little League, Romulus Athletic Association.

Also petitioning for CD funds are: The American Progressive Association, Region III Wayne Metropolitan Service Agency, Romulus Schools, (represented by Tom Baldwin who said funds would be used for a Science Fair); Theresa Washington, Housing Commission, funds for landscaping of public housing; Dorothy Weekly, Recreation Commission, for a feasibility study to construct for a Recreation Complex, and Willie Hester, of the Romulus Civic League.

Elected officials also asked to be heard: Councilman Jimmie Raspberry asked Council to consider funds for improvements at Cypress Park, while Mayor Pro Tem, Mary Ann Banks, would like to see monies earmarked for Kennedy Park and Mayor Beverly McAnally asked funds be set aside to help the Eager Beaver program, a program that helps mentally impaired children.

Representing the Romulus Central Business Association, Bill Simonds, president, urged council to consider the commitment to revitalizing downtown Romulus.

"A successful revitalization process will ensure that Romulus doesn't become a city without a heart, a city without a downtown or commercial center."

"And if success is achieved, the city will benefit; if it fails, the city can only be hurt. A central business district that succeeds means demand for more floor space, increased rentals and occupancy and property values and, consequently, greater revenues to the city through property and business taxes," Simonds concluded.

Huron clerk, Carey picked MTA secretary

Mary Lou Carey, Huron Township Clerk, was elected by delegates to the 31st Annual Educational Convention of the Michigan Townships Association (MTA) to serve as statewide Secretary of the Association.

Mrs. Carey's election to statewide office is a step toward the MTA leadership ladder. She ultimately may be considered for the MTA Presidency in 1988.

Norman Bell, Supervisor of Thomas Township in Saginaw County, was elected 1984-85 MTA President on January 27.

"My goal on the MTA Executive Committee is to help unify large and small townships in this state," Mrs. Carey said.

MARY LOU CAREY

The final days of Detroit?

Has the knell sounded for Detroit Corporation, the company that had planned to construct a sludge plant in Romulus?

Detroit, which failed to gain Planning Commission and City Council approval for their proposed sludge plant asked the court to intervene. And the two-year long litigation apparently is coming to an end.

Michael H. Feiler, who represents the city's interest in the duel against Detroit, pointed out in a letter to City Council some of the frustrations he is having dismissing the litigation.

The letter, dated February 2, 1984, appeared in the Council packet and it addressed itself to the alleged delay tactics used by Detroit officials.

The letter reads, in part, that "On January 27, 1984, I (Michael Feiler) appeared for hearing before Circuit Judge Louis Simmons on a motion by Detroit's attorney to withdraw. Detroit was present at court and requested 60 days in which to secure a new attorney. The court indicated that it would grant the 60 days in which to secure a new attorney."

"I requested of the court that Detroit state its corporate address on the record."

"I indicated that if an attorney was not appointed within 60 days that I would move for summary judgment or dismissal. The judge indicated that he would grant it on the spot. The new chief executive officer of Detroit is Ray Mallman. When asked the address of the corporation he gave a post office box in Detroit. I objected and the court agreed — that we were entitled to a corporate office where service of process could be made. After hemming and hawing, he finally relented and gave his own address at 29505 Wentworth, Livonia, MI 48154 as the official offices of the corporation. He further stipulated on the record, at my request, that service of process could be made upon any adult person at that address."

"By virtue of the fact that Donald Cox was also present in court for this motion, I assume there is still continuing interest on the part of Detroit. I will diary my file for the sixty (60) day period and if no attorney has failed an appearance by that date, I shall present an Order for Dismissal for Failure to Prosecute," the letter concluded.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By John Brimble

DON'T use powdered sugar for fresh-fruit desserts or cocktails; it contains cornstarch, and you will taste its rawness. DO use superfine sugar for best results.

Stuffing for chicken: 1/2 cup rice, cooked in bouillon, 1/2 pound mushrooms and a small diced onion, sauteed together, plus a 10-ounce package of frozen spinach, chopped. Toss lightly and season to taste. Enough for 6 rock cornish hens, 2 broilers, or one oven roaster or capon.

Today's etymology lesson: the word "yam" comes from the Senegalese word "nyami" — to eat. The large tuber is a staple in Senegal.

Wrap pared, seasoned baking apples with flaky pastry. Bake 15 minutes at 450° to set the pastry, then 20-30 minutes at 350° until apples are tender.

If company is ready to eat, and the roast isn't, slice the meat and broil it briefly.

In conjunction with Catholic Week, pupils at St. Aloysius School released hundreds of balloons, which carried attached notes bearing the student's name and school. It's hoped that the finder of the balloon will contact the school and student.

Commissioner Mack, where are you?

Whether there was a mix-up in dates or there was another reason, Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack, was a "no show" at the Romulus City Council Monday night. Mack petitioned to be placed on the agenda.

According to a release put out by the county, Mack was scheduled to visit "Romulus City Hall on February 13". However, his name appeared on Monday night's council agenda as a speaker. He did not make it to the meeting.

If Commissioner Mack had been present he would have heard councilman Jimmie Raspberry vehemently defend the statua-

"I have deep respect for Commissioner Mack," Raspberry added, "but I will challenge anyone and everyone who will attempt to close that hospital. The law says there should be a county hospital to provide for the poor. And that hospital is there to help the indigent as well as those who need it.

"In the same respect, I feel that it is contingent upon the county to find a way to erase the deficit and make the institute (WCGH) economically self-sufficient."

In Romulus schools

Student test scores 'stay stable'

A study of the performance of students in the Romulus Community Schools on the Michigan Educational State Assessment Program (MEAP) reading and mathematics tests indicates student scores remained stable over the past four years.

The MEAP tests measure student performance on the basic reading and mathematics skills expected of students at the beginning of fourth, seventh and tenth grades. These tests, prepared by the Michigan Department of Education (MDE), are administered annually to all fourth, seventh and tenth grade students throughout the state.

Dr. Terrel LeCesne, assistant superintendent for Administrative Services, summarized the results of this year's tests at a recent meeting of the Romulus Board of Education.

Dr. LeCesne's data suggest that student performance on the tests administered in October, 1983 paralleled scores obtained by last year's students. In addition, Dr. LeCesne indicated that the profile of student performance in Romulus is similar to that obtained by students throughout Wayne County.

Dr. LeCesne reported that approximately 63 percent of the Romulus fourth graders, 73 percent of the seventh graders, and 76 percent of the tenth grade students passed the reading tests designed for their grade levels. Those figures are 66 percent, 43 percent, and 60 percent respectively for the mathematics portion of the test. When compared to students throughout Wayne County, the Romulus students scored slightly above average in reading in grades seven and ten, while Romulus scores were significantly above average on the tenth grade mathematics test.

Romulus students scored slightly below the county average on the fourth and seventh grade mathematics tests and the tenth grade reading test.

Dr. LeCesne indicated that "while we're not satisfied with the scores, we are pleased that a large majority of our students pass these tests. Our students are performing about as well as average students throughout the county, but we must continue to work toward improving performance beyond current levels."

Dr. William Bedell, superintendent of schools, in commenting on the test scores pointed out that more often than not emphasis is placed on the smaller percentage of students who don't pass the test as opposed to the great majority who do, which really isn't fair to all concerned.

Pennington gets planning board appointment

With incumbent Michael Prybyla withdrawing his name for consideration, City Council Monday night confirmed the appointments recommended by Mayor Beverly McAnally to the nine-person Planning Commission.

Named to fill the expired term served by Prybyla is Ellis Pennington who was appointed to a three-year term.

The council also reappointed to the commission Fred Williams, Patrick Hogan and Philip Renke.

Prybyla said he withdrew his name from consideration because, "I wanted to stop the political controversy that apparently was involved in my nomination."

"Furthermore, I would like to thank council for having the confidence in my abilities to get the job done. It appears that they were deadlocked with the mayor on her recommendation, and I personally chose not to get involved."

First appointed in 1977, Prybyla stressed that he "has always worked for the best interests of the City of Romulus."

Volunteers sought for new inmate program

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Staff Writer

Jail, by any length of the imagination, isn't a picnic. It can be demoralizing, demeaning and difficult for the incarcerated individual.

If you're a woman, it can be all of those things, or it can be a time for personal growth or acquisition of new skills, thanks to a program through the YMCA of Western Wayne County.

The program volunteers work with from 75 to 100 female prisoners at the Wayne County Jail Annex in Westland in a modified social adjustment class that helps the prisoners renew their deputies' attitude is that they're incarcerated criminals. We ran into resistance from them last year when we took in a Christmas tree for the women."

Most of the women are at the annex from six month to a year. Most have been arrested for prostitution or drug related crimes, so volunteers work with a modified social adjustment setup, stressing self-esteem, parenting and "other ways of living."

"We work on self-esteem and show them there are alternatives to the behavior that got them there in the first place," Cadwell noted.

"We work on self-esteem and show them there are alternatives to the behaviour that got them there in the first place."

self-esteem, learn new skills and develop their parenting techniques, according to YW area coordinator Sue Cadwell.

The work isn't easy, and there tends to be resistance between the volunteers, who are predominantly white, and the prisoners, of which 90 percent are black. The prisoners in the unit are divided between those who are sentenced and those awaiting sentencing, which also creates friction, according to Cadwell.

Cadwell paints a gloomy picture of life at the annex. The volunteers use a picnic table to work at with the prisoners.

"They really don't have anything," Cadwell said, "and the Volunteers work between two and 10 hours a week, but not necessarily every week. They must work at the same time on the same day of the week and submit a short outline of their curriculum, to be checked by the authorities.

They also must sign a contract that indicates they know the rules of the jail. If they violate any one of those rules, according to Cadwell, they are asked not to continue as volunteers.

Potential volunteers go through an initial telephone interview in which Cadwell explains the setup at the annex and what they are getting in to. That's followed by a personal interview to make sure they want to make such a commitment.

"It (jail) really is a depressing place. . . They lead a very regimented life, so they are very appreciative of us being their advocates."

Once over those two hurdles the volunteers are then taken to the county jail in Detroit to talk with the deputies and to the Sheriff's Office where they are fingerprinted for their security clearance.

Once a part of the program, volunteers spend their first few weeks mingling with the prisoners "to let them know who you are and what you're going to do," Cadwell explained. "Once they get involved and they've established a bond with you, they open up and trust you."

"Most of the time we have a good reception," she added. "A lot really like us once they get to know us and know we can be an advocate for them."

Currently, the program isn't in operation at the annex, however, Cadwell hopes to attract from five to 10 volunteers willing to make a 4½-month commitment. Although she prefers sessions dealing with self-awareness, which generate a lot of discussion, entertaining or recreational type classes also are acceptable.

"Just because you don't think you have skills, it doesn't mean you can't be a volunteer," Cadwell said. "We can still use volunteers, even for a woman who wants someone to talk to."

The volunteer program has been in existence since 1978, and one off shoot of it was the Women for Women at the Annex, a group of volunteers who served as advocates for the inmates. That group was successful in getting a shower curtain.

Cadwell has found that the women are more receptive to younger volunteers between the ages of 20 and 25, and that it is the older prisoners who get the newer prisoners involved in the program.

"It's really a depressing place," Cadwell explained. "They lead a very regimented life there, so they are very appreciative of us being their advocates."

Women interested in the program can contact Cadwell at 561-4110 for further information and an interview. Rest assured, what you hear will be gloomy, but the end result positive.

"We had one prisoner, who had been there eight months, came back and worked as a volunteer at the annex as the result of the program," Cadwell concluded. "We don't see a lot of women coming back (to jail), so maybe it's working."

American Grafitti: Bray's keeps that '50s feeling

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Staff Writer

The building and its interior have the flavor of the '50s, but the mood's not contrived. Bray's Hamburgers has been serving up "belly busters" at 35650 Ford Road, Westland, for almost 30 years.

Easily recognized by the braying donkey with a hamburger perched on the signpost, it was the first of 10 such fast food places Gordon Bray opened in the metropolitan area between 1955 and 1974. There are only two left in the family, one at Nine Mile and Dequindre and the Westland restaurant, owned individually by his sons.

John Bray bought the Westland business from his father in 1974, and at the ripe old age of 19 found himself in the hamburger business. He had a lot to learn and credits the employees with helping to "train him."

Little has changed in the restaurant since it first opened. It seats about 13 people and offers both counter service and a carry-out window. Jean Woods has managed the eatery for approximately 20 years, and Carol May has been working as cook and counter person for almost as long.

Fresh beef is delivered six days a week and used in the well-known Bray's burgers. Small hamburgers start at 56 cents each and work up to a third of a pound burger for $1.96. For burger fanatics, there's 10 burgers in a bag for $5.

Bray's burgers also feature something other than hamburgers don't — fresh ground and grilled onions, which he credits with bringing customers back for more.

If burgers aren't your craving, there's "really good" chili, hot dogs and coney dogs or breakfast, served 24 hours a day. Try two eggs, potatoes, bacon or sausage and toast for $1.85. There's also a 99-cent special of two eggs, potatoes and toast, served from 6 to 11:30 a.m.

Several times a year, Bray offers a wooden nickel special, with each nickel worth five cents off on food or drink purchases.

"It's still about the same as the day it opened," he said of business. "It's not hard to keep people coming back. They say it reminds them of the '50s, and they like that."

"Bray's is like what you would picture a fast food place of the '50s with the counters and stools. The only difference is a bag of 10 burgers cost only $1 then."

Leathercraft classes challenge seniors

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Staff Writer

Robert Bowman has been doing leathercrafting for about seven years, but it was his wife who got him involved in his biggest challenge.

Bowman has been teaching leathercrafts to senior citizens at the Westland Senior Friendship Center for five years, and although the class size has dwindled from 12 students to five or six, the enthusiasm and interest of his students keep him busy.

"I was on disability and my doctor said to get out and do something, so I stopped at the Friendship Center and found the leather and woodcarving classes," explained student Frank Moore. "I've made belts, purses, key cases, and most of the stuff I give as gifts. It's great."

"You're learning something all the time. I'm still learning," Bowman added. "I'm no master by any extent of the imagination."

Bowman, whose class is in cooperation with the Wayne-Westland Community Schools' Adult-Community Education Program, got into the craft by attending a class his son was teaching at Wayne Memorial High School. After his wife lined him up to teach the class at the center, "I ducked out and took a few classes."

His students graduate up. They learn tooling, then move to leather carving with the specialized tools.

Key cases take about two 2 1/2-hour sessions and are the first projects tackled by students. According to Bowman, it's the lacing that takes the longest.

Patterns are used to mark the leather, with stamping tools used to outline and fill in the detail work. A more difficult leather carving can take four to five weeks of classes to complete and is the goal Bowman has set for his students.

The weight of the leather used depends on the project. Six-ounce leather (every 1/32nd of an inch thickness equals an ounce) is used for purses, while eight-ounce leather can be tooled for belts, gun slings and such.

Bowman instructs students to keep the leather damp until it is dyed, either rolling it in plastic wrap or a damp bath towel. Wetting it and allowing it to dry, then re-wetting, can cause the leather to harden.

Art teacher Linnea Saffell assists Bowman with the class. She hadn't worked with leather "for many, many years," but has recovered her skills since joining the class in September.

She praised Bowman's work with the seniors, saying that he "gives good instructions and is a very patient person."

Her work on a carved and stamped rifle sling for a son drew plenty of help from Bowman, even when it came to the color dye and the way to apply it.

Seniors interested in the class can contact the Friendship Center at 722-6532 for further information.

W-W teacher layoffs were no secret

"They're justified," Wayne-Westland school board member Kathleen Chorbagan said of a group of angry parents who gathered outside the district's administrative offices last Monday night. "They're concerned about their best product, their children."

Most definitely the parents were concerned. Their high school-aged children were caught in the process of changing to a five-hour school day and the layoff of 132 teachers. They were there to get answers, but there was no one there who could supply those answers.

Why the layoffs? Why the five-hour day? Why the elimination of the fine arts program at the elementary level? Why is their school district, one of the highest taxed in the state, $4 million in the red?

Monday night was to have been a regular meeting night of the school board, but on the recommendation of the administration, board president James LeDuc cancelled it. The explanation was that while the district attempted to negotiate a new three-year contract and concessions to restore the cut backs, there was no time to prepare the necessary information for items on the agenda.

The parents felt they were being used — by the district and by the teachers — and were angry that they were not made aware of the drastic changes that took place last week. Most said they found out just three weeks ago.

While we understand the parents' concern, we find their lack of advanced warning of the cutbacks disquieting. The job of a community newspaper is to keep its readers informed of what is happening in their community. Granted we cannot cover everything, but issues of major importance are never overlooked.

The layoff of 132 teachers and the cutback in programming were of major importance and were reported on more than three weeks ago. The actions were taken by the school board on Dec. 19, 1983. It was at that time that School Superintendent Timothy Dyer pointed out the most profound effect would be felt in the high schools.

In this instance it appears that the adage of "you can lead a horse to water, but you can't make it drink" is very appropriate. All the news articles in the world are useless, if those they are intended to inform don't read them.

Government, even at the school district level, is of the people, for the people and by the people. Good government is the result of informed people who participate. Meetings may not be as entertaining as the Monday night fare on television, but they are informative and educating.

We chide those parents who have chosen not to get involved in the educational process until it's too late. Nothing was accomplished outside the board offices last Monday night. However, had those same parents taken a few hours twice a month to attend a school board meeting, they would have had their questions answered before then.

We encourage parents to get involved in the education of "their best product." We encourage them to attend school board meetings. That is where the decisions that affect their children are made and where they can have input, and possibly an impact, on the quality of education.

Is W-W education being diluted by lame duck administration?

As a homeowner and parent of students in the Wayne-Westland School District, I am appalled at the cavalier way the education of our children is being diluted. Even more significant is the fact that this can only be interpreted as an arbitrary and capricious unilateral decision by a lame duck administration. It can hardly be viewed as coincidental that, in 1984, the arrogant and condescending superintendent of Wayne-Westland schools has determined what is best for our children.

Without even taking the problem to the electorate, which has unflinchingly supported every proposal calculated to maintain and upgrade the quality of education in the district, Dr. Timothy Dyer superintendent of schools, has decided to make sweeping cuts in school programs. It is typical of the big brother mentality of the man that he has determined the cuts should be in the area of art, music, physical education and library services at the elementary school level, as well as a reduction in the length of the school day.

It should be no surprise to the people whom he has never condescended to communicate with that he feels it is counter-productive to spend money to adequately prepare our children for college, much less to provide an appreciation for things in life which he obviously feels are best reserved for the elitist minority.

Dr. Dyer has demonstrated the ability to administer effectively during times of prosperity. His record during the recent years of adversity has been far less effective. For the sake of the children of Phoenix, let us hope that he is never called upon to do anything other than spend money with a free hand. He has certainly failed to show any creativity during the current circumstances. If running away in the face of a real challenge is being presented as an appropriate response, it should not surprise the administration if the voters take the same approach when board members come up for re-election or when millages are proposed. I, for one, am ready to abandon anyone who thinks so little of my children.

While I support the recent actions by the state to require specific elements in the educational sequence as well as proficiency testing as a prerequisite for graduation, the proposal to extend the school year by 20 days is completely inconsistent with the reduction in the school day being suggested by our administration.

If we fail to provide the requisite tools for students to learn with, lengthening the school year represents nothing more than baby-sitting. I, for one, can think of more economical types of custodial care.

The state is proposing computer training which, I agree, will be as necessary as the ability to read and write for our children to function in the future. If, however, they are willing to spend dollars to provide the equipment and expertise required to achieve competency in computer skills, why do they refuse to spend the pennies necessary to provide full library service for elementary schools.

After all, not every home has a computer, but library skills are essential to both research and reading for enjoyment. My daughter is already unable to complete high school assignments without going outside the resources of the Wayne-Westland School District and/or public library.

If further cuts are made, we may as well eliminate the college preparatory program entirely.

It may be argued that library skills will be acquired in junior and senior high school. Is anyone so naive as to believe that our children can forfeit a six-year headstart to pupils from more pragmatic districts and still compete effectively? Are we so pleased with our performance in the state and national tests (MEAP/SAT/ACT/CAT) that we can delude ourselves into thinking that we are currently doing enough?

In my professional capacity, I have traveled abroad extensively. I have had an opportunity to observe and evaluate a variety of other cultures, including some of our most challenging competitors in the world market. One of the most apparent differences between their education and that of Americans is the emphasis which other countries place on Art, Music, History and Physical Fitness.

Even in third world countries such as Mexico, it is a constant source of embarrassment to me to be reminded of how much these people know, not only about their culture, but about our own. I am speaking about technical and financial people, not just teachers and artists.

Countries which were old before America was a nation have all come to the conclusion that a total education, which included cultural and physical elements, is a necessity for a well-rounded human being. We have not been so successful in competing with these people that we are qualified to decide that non-technical subjects are a luxury.

The administration in attempting to practice their own version of Orwell's "Newspeak" under the guise of giving us what we want, they have decided for themselves what it is that we need. It is very significant that none of the cuts will negatively impact the administrators themselves. Clerical personnel, for example, are being cut only in the elementary school libraries. Evidently no sacrifice is too great for our children to make as long as the superintendent gets his check on time and has his phone calls answered. Furthermore, it is obviously too difficult to evaluate and administer Art, Music and Physical Education that it is to assess progress in reading and math. I urge residents to make their opinions known concerning these reprehensible cuts.

Remember, it is only a small step from "Big Brother is watching out for you" to the more famous quote from 1984.

Richard Debs is in the news again, and that's bad news for Van Buren Township.

The former township police commander and one-time patrolman is also in court again.

That isn't news.

Debs is suing the Van Buren Township Board, namely, township supervisor George Craven, treasurer Donna Hall, clerk Delphine Dudick, trustees Thurston Jahr, Darwin Kureth, Marilyn Montgomery and Jerry Maton because he (Debs) wants his old job back.

No, not the job as police commander, but that of police officer.

Seems, according to papers and affidavits filed in Wayne County Circuit Court, Debs had cut a deal with the then police commissioner of Van Buren, Tom Welty, that if he (Debs) would bow out as police commander during those turbulent years before the recall (1982) that he (Debs) could have his job back when the media got off of his (Debs') back.

Welty makes this point clear in an affidavit filed in court. In that affidavit, Welty says . . . "That in February, 1982, he (Welty) was the immediate supervisor of Richard Debs, who was the Police Commander for Van Buren Township at that time . . .

"That the undersigned (Welty) did further indicate to Richard Debs that upon his resignation and an adequate period of time in which the publicity surrounding the appointment of Richard Debs as Commander of the Van Buren Police Department has subsided, he would reinstate Richard Debs as a Patrol Man with the said Police Department."

So, Debs, the controversial President of the Local 1776 of the United Auto Workers, wants his badge and gun returned to him and is asking through his attorney, Leo C. Gilhool, and the court to make sure he returns to the force.

The Honorable Sharon Tevis Finch, Circuit Court Judge, has invited the two sides to join her at 9 a.m., February 24 in her courtroom to hear arguments why Debs can't play cobs and robbers again.

Craven and this board have brought back "some common sense" politics to the township and it's unfortunate that Debs would disturb the calm.

The state audit recently showed that Van Buren is "One of the best run townships in the state," and there is no reason it shouldn't continue to be so.

Debs could do this township, in which he professes he desires to serve, a big favor. He could get lost and do what he has been doing for the past 1½ years.

That's the best way he can serve Van Buren.

Flying Solo

Okay . . . so I missed one deadline and the editorial department got really ugly and my column didn't appear last week. Big deal, nobody's perfect y'know. I mean, so sue me, everyone else has, so what's one more . . . Wait, on second thought, maybe you could like just accept my apology for missing the proverbial cut off? Hey, dealing with my editorial department isn't easy . . . they get downright rude.

I really did have a very serious column all roughed out. It was really great, too bad you missed it. Unfortunately it never left the old cranium (that's my brain for the young crowd . . . not that they'd read this drivel).

"Flying Solo" required a level of self-discipline and commitment to hitting the mark that one (one, that's me) must acclimate oneself (that's me, also) to, (oh nuts, I dangled a preposition and the editorial department is going to get me again).

All right, all right, so I had a hard time getting this great idea I had down on paper before deadline, and then, see, just about the time I was almost starting to think real serious about maybe writing something down on actual paper, well, I got this even better, more serious idea, see, one you'd really be impressed with and . . .

Well, then I got a genuine hand-written note from Sharon Popek saying I had made her a celebrity because I put her name in this column . . . see what name dropping will do? That distracted me. I had to think about whether making her famous like this would let me get away with cutting her pay. What's half of a dollar, anyway?

Then somebody told me that they heard that this NEW guy writing for the paper was sort of amusing. It was more like, I guess to tell the truth, that they said I almost made them smile . . . okay, so they said my stuff was almost interesting.

But now listen up. This is almost worth reading. Next week, I promise I'm going to write something serious and I'm not going to warn you or anything, I'm just going to start right out and stimulate your thought processes and maybe like your thinking, too. Be sure to miss it if you can. I promise you won't regret it.

But in case you can't resist the temptation and read it anyway, I'll attempt to make it . . . well, as unannoying as possible for BOTH my readers.

This column is going to be so serious that I'll probably wear one of my grey publisher suits just to write it — all publishers wear publisher suits, y'know. Sure, you can always spot them, the suit is always blue or grey. This is serious publisher stuff. If another publisher were to catch you, say in a brown suit or something, then they throw you right out of the publisher club. Well, unless of course you wear a beard . . . then if you're caught out of Levis and your bowling shirt, they shave off your beard and then hurt you . . . real bad. Publishers have no sense of humor, that's another rule, like the grey or blue suits.

So if I can ever end this dumb column, I'm immediately going to start in on next week's you-know-what. I'm reminded that a winner makes commitments while a loser makes promises . . . so I'll get committed. Most people think I should be anyway.

See you next week, seriously.

W-W residents seek answers

EDITOR — We are citizens of Wayne, taxpayers, and very upset with the present status of our school system. At this point we feel our hands are tied as far as turning around the damage that has been done. It does not stop us, though, from making ourselves heard through this newspaper and talking to anyone who will listen.

Teachers who have specialized in certain areas such as math, band, home ec., language, etc., are now placed in positions that they're not familiar with. That is like having a foot doctor deliver your baby and an obstetrician repair your broken foot. This whole situation is totally unreal. There are many excellent teachers who cannot use their full potential because of these asinine changes. If the school system remains as is, Wayne-Westland schools might as well kiss their reputation as an excellent school system good-bye.

The problems we are facing now are the results of the 1981 contract. The board, as well as the teachers and administration knew there was not enough money to cover that contract yet it was passed.

Why? Dr. Timothy Dyer is leaving behind a $4 million dollar deficit that he and his administration has created. Why? Is it true that Dr. Dyer, when his resignation is accepted, will receive 5% of his base salary, plus be reimbursed for sick days and vacation days? This amounts to approximately $15,000 in addition to his present salary.

Bill Reese, president of the teachers union, receives his salary from the taxpayers of Wayne-Westland. Why? Shouldn't this be the responsibility of the teachers. Mr. Reese won't even answer phone calls from concerned parents.

Teachers have been asked to concede a 6% Cost of Living raise to balance the budget. We understand that Wayne-Westland teachers are among the highest paid in the area and should give up like so many of us have, but, it seems that cuts in administration could be made to free up money.

Such as two principals in the junior high level seems very unnecessary and some of the other high paid positions consolidated would be helpful in reducing our debt. There is too much waste of taxpayers dollars.

Somewhere along the line our taxes have been misused by all concerned. Our children are being used as pawns in all of these negotiations between teachers, administration and school board. We are angry and need answers to these very important questions.

Gloria Acres resident pulls out

EDITOR — I read in your January 18-19 issue a letter from a resident of Wayne, advising that Gloria Acres Subdivision residents are upset about the reports of cancer in her community. The writer feels there has been inaccurate information and only go on fact.

I would like to add my comments.

It was stated Dynamite Park may be the cause of problems.

I believe Gloria Acres was built on a chemical waste dump but I do not know that is a fact.

But I wish I had read about Gloria Acres before I moved there (June 30, 1982).

I lived in the near Ron Hames' home and hear he has terminal cancer. Our home was the fourth home out of the eleven main homes mentioned in some articles. Our landlord's husband had died there from cancer. But I did not know any of this.

My husband who was 37 years old when we moved there has never been sick until 7 months after we lived on Hayes St. in Wayne. First the doctors felt he had gallbladder problems. He had surgery but he wasn't getting better. He has been unable to work since February of 1983. He has been in intensive care twice and has went into heart failure a number of times.

There has also been other heated problems this last year in my family.

I don't say any of us has cancer. I pray we do not but as far as the newspaper cautioning people, I'm thankful.

I'm sure most of the residents who are sick with cancer are grateful that this crisis has been printed. I feel something is wrong in Gloria Acres.

Did W-W Board really negotiate?

EDITOR — The board members of the Wayne-Westland School District better take another look at what they are allowing to happen in the school district.

The board says we have a $4 million dollar deficit, and they approved the lay-off of 135 teachers to save money.

Board member McCusker said the teachers are not willing to even look at what is being offered. Is it not true that the administrative side is not willing to give in either? It is my understanding that the teachers' side has been trying to "negotiate", but it's been an "accept what the board offers or nothing" kind of negotiating going on.

Has the board been able to look at the issues with an open mind? Are trustees afraid of recalls? Well, I feel they should be. I would never support a recall based on a decision they reached after careful consideration. But considering what the board is allowing to go on right now, I'm not convinced the board is not reaching decisions based on the facts.

The teacher's contract entitled them to a raise. That's over and done with. The people who approved that contract were recalled, and I did not support that recall at all. However, this board is now making decisions that are jeopardizing the quality education of the students of this district. I find that intolerable.

I say get the teachers back in the classroom where they belong. Restore the programs to normal. Find a way to cut cost through negotiation, not dictatorship.

This mass layoff is not in the best interest of the "Kids" and if we can't keep the "Kids" first, then we have lost sight of the purpose we are all here for.

Mr. McCusker said that the placement process was spelled out and that it was being followed according to the "Letter of the Law". Now there's all kinds of switching going on. Has the "Letter of the Law" been changed? If he felt these people were capable of handling these assignments, why are they being changed now? Why are some programs more important than others. I know of one teacher laid off and his replacement cannot even teach his classes because he does not have the required certification.

There are far too many injustices going on. I for one am tired of everyone using the children as pawns.

If I wanted a bargain rate for my children's education, I would move where the taxes were lower. I do not feel that my children's future is something I care to look for on a sale rack. I have always felt that at least my tax dollars were coming back to my own children. Now I want to know where the board intends to spend my money.

People of Wayne and Westland should get out and talk to their teachers. They did not ask for this situation. Get some facts. Then let your feelings be known.

K. G.
Westland,

Appalled at LWV's request

EDITOR — I was absolutely amazed and appalled that the Canton Local Chapter of the League of Women Voters would ask and actually show up at the monthly meeting of the Canton Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, February 1, asking for assistance from the Canton Business Merchants.

Can you believe they are soliciting and asking for support from the Business Merchants to sell Sesquicentennial License Plates?

Can you also believe that a portion of the proceeds was slated for the League's own use. I was with the understanding that all proceeds has to be donated to the Sesquicentennial Committee if the Logo was used? I am wondering why the special treatment.

In conclusion, it should be noted I am not writing on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, but merely a local business merchant who vividly remembers the ruthless attitude toward the proposed new Sign Ordinance a mere two years ago where the League had every intention of cutting the throats of the same people they are now coming to for support.

So, to the members of the Canton Local Chapter of the League of Women Voters, please don't bother contacting our two restaurants in Canton Township. We only hope other business merchants remember the period two (2) years ago when we really needed help and this organization did everything possible to stop us in our tracks.

ANP staffer receives praise

EDITOR — I would like to take this opportunity to praise the fine journalistic skills of your reporter Sue McDonald. Her recent article chronicled the case of Mrs. Hiraben Shah, one of my cataract patients.

As Ms. McDonald stated, Mrs. Shah underwent phacoemulsification extraction of her cataract. Indeed, this case was unique in that Mrs. Shah traveled 7,000 miles from India for this surgical procedure and the pre-operative condition of the eye was very poor.

I was most impressed with Ms. McDonald's sensitivity in covering the details of Mrs. Shah's surgery and subsequent successful visual rehabilitation. It is quite easy to become captivated with the marvelous technological breakthroughs in cataract treatment and overlook the human side of our field of medicine. As Ms. McDonald illustrated, even though this is something that we do every day, to our patient's it is still a miracle.

She truly captured the scope of our work at the Coburn Clinic; the restoration of sight.

Again, my congratulations to Ms. McDonald for her compassionate and effective journalistic style.

Metro Dems are great

EDITOR — Nice going Democrat Club!

I thank God for the good people in Metro Democratic Club, especially Cliff Johnson and Bob Smith also Debbie and Gladis, two good friends of mine.

It made me sick when they announced on TV they had to destroy a lot of food in Detroit last week. Didn't have room to store it. Just think how many little kids and people all over could have used that food. So couldn't get any food at the club for two weeks or more in Wayne. I am paralyzed all of my body but one hand, so when I need something Cliff Johnson and Bob Smith delivers, and lots other people that can't go to get it.

I have been bed ridden for 18 years and on low income. I have to pay my housekeeper and I live in a city low income house. I sure want to thank St. Mary's Church for their help at Christmas, the American Legion Post No. 111 for a box of food.

Foster homes are opposed

EDITOR — This letter is directed to Westland Mayor Charles Pickering. I am sure you are already aware of the proposed home to house six emotionally disturbed adults on the Southeast corner on Cowan at Wildwood. I just wonder if you are also aware that a home such as this already exists not four blocks away at 34638 Parkgrove.

I want you to tell me just how many homes of this type do we need in one neighborhood! If you allow many more, you might as well move all the patients out of Northville State into Westland. Why don't you take the time to consider the children in this neighborhood and their safety.

What do old folks know

Mike looked up from the book he was reading. He untwined his legs from the chair, and rolled the ball he held in his hand across the kitchen floor.

"Grandma," he said, "my teacher said that the older you get the more you know. Is that true?"

"Sure it's true, Mike. When you get as old as I am you know practically everything."

"Awww," he leaped across the floor and got his ball away from the cat and then laid flat on his stomach as he rolled the ball back across the room. "If you know everything then how come you don't know where Grandpa is right now?"

He knew that I didn't know where his grandfather was 'right now' because it hadn't been more than five minutes before that he had asked me where his grandfather was, and I had answered that I didn't know.

As his great uncle came into the room, Mike leaped to his feet and shouted, "Uncle Bro, Uncle Bror... Hi!" But his great uncle didn't answer. He wanted to... he wanted to answer by hitting the kid in the head. You could tell that because his arms were flailing but he knew he couldn't touch the grandson of his brother just because he had been suffering from a miserable cold which had left him grumpy.

"Uncle Bror... how are you, man? The kid shouted as he bounced his ball on the floor.

No answer.

"See, Grandma... old people don't either know everything! Uncle Gunnar doesn't even know his middle name!" And the kid went bouncing his ball into the dining room and on into the living room.

"Grandma," he shouted a few minutes later. "Where'd my pencil go?"

"I don't know, Mike," I shouted back.

"See, man, see... you DON'T know everything!" And he shouted with glee while he rolled around on the floor.

"I bet I can ask you thousands of questions and you can't answer none of them!" he challenged.

But I wasn't rising to the bait. After all I had raised six kids who experimented with me through dozens of years, and there was one thing I learned. When it comes to your kids there is never a time when they find out that you know more than they. And I presume it is the same with grandchildren.

While I was stirring the spaghetti and deep in my philosophical thoughts, the door opened and the kid's grandfather came in.

"Mike," I yelled. "I know where Grandpa is."

"Where?" he shouted back as he hung over backwards in the Lazy-Boy chair.

"Here in the kitchen! Now tell me I don't know everything..."

The little kid came leaping

into the kitchen, bumping into his great uncle which made his great uncle snort, wrapped his skinny little arms around his grandfather and said, "Grandma thanks she knows everything."

And the kid's grandpa hugged the little kid to him and said, "That will be the day. You can't be a chauvinist if you let 'em think they know everything."

"Do chauvinists know everything when they get old, Grandpa?"

"Sure. Only chauvinists know everything, Mike," answered his grandfather.

"Then I'm going to be a chauvinist when I grow up, Man!"

And he will... he will.

land. In the Hannan Road-Warren Road area. It is run by this same group of people — kind and sensitive people who know that there are built-in fears whenever an operation like this goes into effect.

As Jim tells it, "We set up a neighborhood advisory board, so that we could air all of those feelings, and, at first, everybody came. Little by little, as they saw there was no threat, the numbers dwindled, until finally we had to go looking for people."

There's something cruel and cowardly about an unsigned letter being distributed throughout a neighborhood — it's only intent to scare people into forcing good people out. And the residents of that $120,000 home built with the taxpayer's money in an "affluent" neighborhood (what does that mean? Should they only be built in poor neighborhoods?) are good people. Good people with some temporary problems.

The ones I would wonder about are the ones who would send such a letter.

mona grigg

Emotionally disturbed letter

A friend called me the other day to tell me about a letter being circulated around her neighborhood. It was unsigned and left in her door.

At the top, in big black letters, were the words, "Are you aware?" (no question mark). A few spaces down, it continued: "That a home is going to be built to house 6 EMOTIONALLY DISTURBED Adults on the South East corner on Cowan at Wildwood!"

It went on to say that the funds to build this $120,000 home are coming from the state, and the questions that should be asked are these:

"How can the state justify taking these people out of the State Facility in Northville and build and maintain a home of this value in Westland?"

"Why are they building in an affluent neighborhood with children? Values of homes are going to drop!"

"Is this what you want for your neighborhood and for your children? Is there a guarantee that you or your children are going to be safe? HELL NO!"

The letter ended with, "We must stand together as a Community and fight this to the end, if not for your sake then for the sake of your children. Take the time to call these people listed below and voice your opinion."

The people listed below were Charles Pickering, Westland mayor; Dale Farland, City planner; The Westland Observer; Dr. Jenny Needleman, project organizer; The Honorable Carl Levin (spelled "Levan" in the letter), and the Honorable Don Riegle. For whatever reasons, the letter-writers chose to bypass city council members and state representatives.

There were no names and phone numbers of the letter-writers themselves. (Hard to "stand together" when you don't know who you are standing with.)

If there had been names and phone numbers, those of us who took the time to find out about the home could have addressed some of their fears.

We could have told them, for instance, that the state can justify taking those people out of Northville and building a home for them in Westland for two reasons: These are people who don't belong in an institution. They are people whose "emotions" have been "disturbed" temporarily for a variety of reasons: They had had alcoholic problems and are recovering, they've lost their jobs and just can't cope at the moment, or pressures have built up and these people need a quiet place to allow them to recede. They are people like you and me, but with problems they simply cannot handle alone. They need some outside support without being hospitalized.

They are not assaultive, nor are they dangerous. Would it make sense for the State of Michigan to allow their group home program to be jeopardized by placing dangerous people in neighborhoods?"

The second reason for justifying the expense is that, as Jim Minder of the Department of Human Services told me, it is "extremely cost effective." According to Jim, it costs the state $120 to $140 a day to keep those people hospitalized — with no additional services, such as transportation to work sites, etc. — as opposed to the $65 a day per resident in a group home.

Building a new home as opposed to buying an older home in the neighborhood is cost-effective, too, Jim tells me. Space, maintenance, and heating costs were all considered. This particular plan has been built before, and considering all those factors, it is the least expensive way to go.

And if the letter-writers had let us, we could have told them there is a similar group home already in operation in West-

Oak Park puts Romulus out of title reach Redskins rout Eagles to win Metro-West championship

Romulus cagers found state-ranked Oak Park waiting and ready for them the second time around in the Metro-West Conference Friday night.

Coach Al Wilkerson's Eagles needed the victory in order to salvage half of the conference championship. But it wasn't to be as the Redskins earned a 68-50 decision over the Eagles to capture the inaugural conference crown.

"I'm really disappointed that we lost," Wilkerson admitted after the duel at Oak Park. "We really were flat while Oak Park shot extremely well."

Wilkerson singled out three "spurts" which led to his team's demise.

"There were times when I felt we had found ourselves out there, but three spurts where they came back and scored six points each time were the difference in the ballgame."

The loss dipped Romulus' over-all record to 11-3 on the season.

The Redskins, led by Ed Wilcox, carved out a 10-7 first period lead and widened the margin to 29-20 at the intermission. The Eagles stayed close behind the third quarter thanks to Grant Long and Terry Mills, however, ineptness at the free throw line in that period eventually ruined their chances. They converted four of nine charities and only eight of 18 for the entire game.

Oak Park, runner-up in the state in Class B a year ago, put the game out of reach with a 26-15 last period advantage.

Romulus did lead 7-2 early in the ballgame but four consecutive 25-foot jumpers by Wilcox lifted them to that 10-7 first period lead which they never really relinquished.

Long, who this week announced that he will play his collegiate ball at Louisiana Tech, led the Eagles on the boards. He had 14 points, making five field goals but only capitalized on four of 13 from the field, Mills tossed in 15 points.

Wilcox paced the champs with 18 points.

Earlier in the week Romulus destroyed neighboring New Boston Huron 93-45 despite an outstanding individual performance by Randy Roland who fired in 20 of the Chiefs' 45 points. Long and Mills accounted for 22 and 24 points respectively for the winners.

The Eagles are faced with two tough ones this week. After hosting Willow Run Tuesday night and Taylor Truman on Friday, they get a chance to look at district rival, Ypsilanti, when the Braves come to town on Tuesday.

Wayne
buries
Belleville

While Belleville is attempting to find itself in the newly-organized Wolverine A Conference, Wayne Memorial apparently has. The Zebras, playing one of their best over-all games of the season, buried Coach Leon Birdyshaw's Tigers 91-45 Friday night.

"We couldn't stay with them on the boards or anywhere else that night," Coach Birdyshaw admitted. "They have a talented team this year. I was very impressed."

Pollis Robertson and Keith Strickland did most of the damage to the Tigers as the sharpshooting Zebras racked up a 25-8 first period lead and never looked back. Wayne increased that margin to 45-20 as Coach Chuck Henry substituted freely all night.

Robertson led all scorers with 26 points as he connected on 12 field goals and made two of three charities. Teammate Strickland added 15 while Mike Quartuccio tossed in 14.

On the other side, Keith Vawters had an excellent night for Belleville as he scored a team high 20 points. Also in double figures was Phillip Boyd who counted 10 points.

Belleville has failed to find the winning column in their new league and will attempt to snap the seven-game losing streak at

Romulus is bridesmaid at Lincoln Park tourney

Romulus wrestlers apparently are getting accustomed to playing "bridesmaids." Coach Wayne Schimming's grapplers finished second best for the third time this year, winding up runner-up at the Lincoln Park Invitational held Saturday.

The Eagles garnered 162½ points and were second only to Jackson Western (178½) in a field of 18 teams.

"No one ran away with this tournament," Coach Schimming commented. "The competition was excellent. Even though we didn't have a first place winner we balanced out the tournament by having 11 of our wrestlers finish second through fifth place."

Romulus will clash with neighboring Belleville at 7 p.m. on Thursday on the home mats and Schimming admits, "that this will be a crucial test for our wrestlers."

"Belleville traditionally fields excellent wrestling teams," the Romulus coach said, "and this year's club is exceptionally talented."

Although the Eagles didn't produce a champ at Lincoln Park, they had two silver medalists when heavyweight Tracy Cline reached the finals and dropped a 10-2 decision to Monroe's Randy Seiler. Also, Romulus's 119-pounder, Chuck Wilson, lost a 7-3 decision to Jackson Western's Gary Hoffman.

The Eagles came away from the downriver school with a pair of third place medals thanks to the performances of John Burcroff who defeated Dearborn Heights' Robichaud, Lloyd Fudge, 8-5, in the 98-pound class.

It took an overtime, but Romulus's Bill Garland turned back Aquinas's Tony Warrington, 4-0, to capture a third in the 155-pound class.

Romulus earned four fourth places with Joel Mabelitini who was decisioned 1-0 by Trenton's Kevin Webster in the 105-pound category and Matt Scully was awarded a fourth at 112 after losing by a decision to Divine Child's Rick Romeo, 9-2, and Joe Cotton settled for a fourth place medal when he dropped a 9-6 decision in the 132-pound bout to Annapolis's Andy White.

Rob Bomosle of Monroe defeated Romulus' John Montroy, at 138 on a 9-2 decision, giving the local grappler a fourth place.

Romulus also had three fifth places in Rodney Hay (126), Rex Boatwright (145) and Bob Webb (167).

ON THE JOB INJURIES

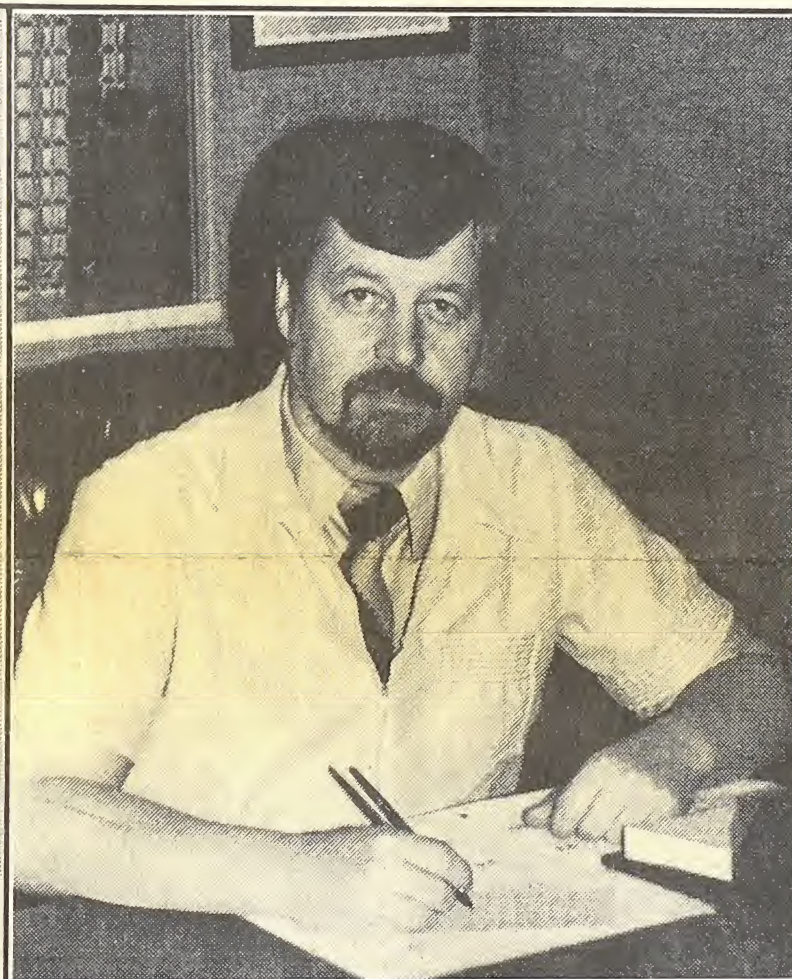

The most common occupational injury is sacroiliac strain. It occurs when the sacrum or tailbone slips from its normal position in relationship to the bones of the pelvis. There is extensive muscular and ligamentous strain. The pain is excruciating and movement of the legs is restricted. Often the sciatic nerve becomes involved which produces even greater disability.

AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIMS

Neck and spinal injuries, as a result of automobile accidents, are among the fastest growing health problems in the country today. The ever increasing number of automobiles on your crowded highways provide the ideal opportunity for the type of accident that results in sudden impact injuries.

PAIN NATURE'S EARLY WARNING SYSTEM!

Nobody likes pain, yet everyone has it. Most of us even try to cover it up with fast relief medication when we should be finding out why we are having the pain. If the pain goes away then we think everything is OK. Right? WRONG! The pain would not have been there if everything was OK.

Pain is important to your well-being. It's Nature's way of telling you that something is wrong. You don't turn off the fire alarm without putting out the fire.

When pain starts you should find the causes and correct them. Medication or pain relievers may merely cover up the pain, it will do nothing to stop the cause. So what is the answer? Your Doctor of Chiropractic! He recognizes that structural imbalance is the underlying cause of many types of painful disorders.

Your Doctor of Chiropractic seeks to maintain the spinal structural integrity of the body, free from spinal defects because he knows that nerve interference (subluxation) impairs normal bodily functions.

Your Doctor of Chiropractic urges you to listen to your body. Let your body enable it's natural restorative recuperative powers to operate at their best. Stop by or call our office today and get back to good health the natural way, the Chiropractic Way. Get a Spinal Check Up.

THINK SAFETY!
ON THE JOB SITE
CHECK YOUR HOME & WORK AREAS
FOR SAFE CONDITIONS

1. Are stairways and halls clear and well lighted?
2. Are hazardous work areas identified?
3. Are family members aware of how to use home implements (shovels, rakes, hoes, tractors) safely?
4. Do family members or work associates know how to lift properly?
5. Is REGULAR CHIROPRACTIC CARE a key part of your personal health care program?

Ron:

the Best Husband that I Love Very Much!

Yvonne

Happy Valentines Day.

Sweetheart,

Love Ya, Sue.

All my Valentine wishes I'm going to save

For a certain publisher, his name is Dave

Just for today, I'll promise no nagging

Not about his not sleeping or eyes that are sagging

If he doesn't eat dinner, I won't complain

But only today, will I refrain.

He's getting so thin, I swear it is true

Soon I'll be able to see him through and through

He's got to start eating and sleeping and such

Or I'll take violent action and he'll need a crutch

But not today, oh no, I really swear it

On Valentine's Day, I will just grin and bear it

But after this day, take this warning to heart

Eating and sleeping, he'd better just start

But no matter what action he might choose to take

If he won't be my Valentine, my heart will just break.

KEN,

I love you with all of my heart, FOREVER. Happy Valentines Day.
